Is your data safe? Could your business data survive a fire, tornado, hurricane or even a simple hardware failure?

Don't be held hostage by hardware failure! Disasters happen but with RoyaTech, Inc.'s Business Continuity Solutions so does recovery. About 70% of business people have experienced (or will experience) data loss due to accidental deletion, disk or system failure, viruses, fire or some other disaster

Your company's electronic data is an important asset. In today's fast paced business environment you need your business technology to be available 24x7x365. Could your business survive if you were unable to use your email, accounting software, or any other PC or server based program for extended period of time? Would your customers understand? At RoyaTech, Inc. we believe that maintaining 100 percent IT uptime is important to your business and with our Business Continuity Solutions it can be achieved.

What are Business Continuity Services?

Backing up your data to an external hard drive is a good start. But our solution keeps your business running. For instance, in the event of an email server going down, we can start recovery immediately. Since our appliance takes snapshots of your device, administrators can choose a point in time shortly before the problem occurred and with just a few clicks of the mouse you create a virtual server to restore your email. In the event of a catastrophic server failure our business continuity solution also includes a recovery CD that allows us to perform a bare metal restore on new hardware in a fraction of the time for a typical server rebuild. Since the image can be restored on any machine, regardless of manufacturer, this decreases downtime and ensures your business is up and running again in a shorter amount of time.

The first reaction of employees who lose their data is to try to recover the lost data themselves by using recovery software or either restarting or unplugging their computer, steps that can make later data recovery impossible.

Disasters will happen! With the increased rate of new virus, malware, and spyware programs today's IT infrastructure is at constant risk. Not to mention the unknown. The faster you can get your business technology running again, the greater your chances of survival are. RoyaTech, Inc.'s Business Continuity Solutions get you up and running again...FAST.

Our Business Continuity Solutions are a good value if you never need it..... and priceless if you do.
